WHEATON Industries Inc. | An Employer of Choice

Wheaton Industries Inc. located in Millville, NJ was newly incorporated in 2006. Our legacy lies with Edward Wheaton who established Wheaton Scientific in 1953, a division of Wheaton Glass founded by his grandfather Dr. T. C. Wheaton in 1888.

Today, Wheaton Industries Inc. is a fully integrated business offering a large product portfolio of commodity and leading edge products for the pharmaceutical and life science R&D, diagnostic packaging, and specialty chemicals markets. Our products are used in the up-front stages of research and development and later in full scale production. As a global company we represent our business by selling our products through three divisions.

Wheaton Science Products provides over 3,000 products for R&D in the pharmaceutical, life science, and general laboratory markets through a vast network of distributors in North America. We are recognized in the industry as a top-tier supplier to two of the largest distributors in the world for scientific products.

Wheaton Science Packaging is dedicated to supplying high quality innovative packaging solutions to the unique requirements of companies in the diagnostic packaging market in North America.

Wheaton Science International provides products and services outside North America. They work closely to service the needs of our international distributors for scientific supplies and they provide packaging solutions to international packaging customers.

With products used around the world in virtually every laboratory, the associates of Wheaton proudly embrace the reputation of high quality and remain committed to applying our deep experience in providing products for scientific research and to solve critical packaging requirements.
